Cedi

Cedi regular
by Michael Parson

The Cedi Typeface is a single weight display font that is based on the fluid handwritten style of a work colleague, Cedric Roger.

This design is a fast flowing script that is both lively and original yet equally legible due to it's defined letterforms and open forms.

Despite working well in a regular format, during the design process I started to look at ligatures as a solution for solving some problematic combinations. However, this small implementation soon got vastly expanded as I started to focus on the rythm of the letterforms and how best to convey the 'hand drawn' feature in the design. A common problem in most script fonts is the repeating letterforms that would be particularly un-natural for this manual typeface, therefore hinting at it's digital source. The ligature concept soon evolved into over 2'400 ligatures, trying to cover all repeating glyphs as well as finding more harmious combiations.

This design was created for use in small text settings and use at large point sizes suiting titles, screen use or logo designs.
